

Here are a few Tips and Tricks for our November Theme, Reflections.

Simon Bray has written “4 steps to remarkable Reflection Photography.” Simon speaks to depth of field and various tools he suggests may assist in Reflection Photography. This article can be found at:

<https://photography.tutsplus.com/articles/quick-tip-4-steps-to-remarkable-reflection-photography--photo-4358>

Pinterest has a number of examples of using reflections in photography:

<https://www.pinterest.ca/explore/mirror-photography/?lp=true>

Peter Clark Reflects on Cars:

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=-cVADgWRj4c>

The following is a Blue Lighting tutorial on creating a reflection using photoshop. The technique is fairly complex but the results can be amazing. The example given is a cityscape but using your imagination- there are so many things that you could use this technique on.

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=elq8WGkAygA>

The following are simply examples of great reflective photography which might spur your creative spirit:

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=uBqyQkCVq9c>

Ray Scott has a rather slow tutorial but has some good points on perspective:

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=i-RqkgwF2J0&t=3s>